APPLICANTS' REPLY BRIEF

Sir:

This Brief is being filed in response to certain points raised in the Examiner's Answer dated July 1, 2003.

Applicants firstly note that the Examiner's Answer asserts that the Applicants' Brief did not contain a "...statement identifying the related appeals and interferences which will directly affect or be directly affected by or have a bearing on the decision in the pending appeal." However, on page 2, Section II of the Brief, under the heading "Related Appeals and Interferences", the following statement is clearly present"

"The appellant and the undersigned are not aware of any related appeals or interferences which will directly affect or be directly affected by or have a bearing on the Board's decision in this appeal."

Accordingly, the applicants' Brief did in fact contain the requisite statement regarding potential related appeals and interferences and, as such, the record in this regard should be corrected by an appropriately revised Examiner's Answer.

On a more substantive issue, applicants note that the Qui reference teaches that the surface layers of the core should be more dense material than the internal layers therebetween. However, since the Condebelt board is denser than other boards, the core the applicants are claiming has the denser plies in the middle. Thus, even if the core of Qiu were partially made of Condebelt material, the structure of such a core would be clearly, and patentably, different.

Reversal of all rejections of record is solicited.

Respectfully submitted,

NIXON & VANDERHYE P.C.
